Paying Rent

Keeps You From Owning YOUR OWN HOME

What satisfaction will it be to you in after years to say: "I always paid my rent promptly. My landlord never had to dingdong it out of me."

What satisfaction, if you should then be homeless and unable to pay rent?

If a tenant, be a good one. But you can just as well be your own landlord as once.

We have a lot of good homes listed. Many styles to choose from. There are cozy little four and five-room cottages and bungalows and big houses, too. Anything you like and at terms to suit.

Here are a few: Modern 6-room brick. All conveniences. Two and one-half acres of ground, beautifully laid out. Close in. A bargain. Only part cash and the balance at your convenience. $5500

Only $400 cash and the balance the same as rent, buys cozy five-room cottage, close in. Cement walks all around house. Nice lawn, shade trees, roses, palms, grapes, etc., etc. Price only $2200

COUNTRY PROPERTY.

Owner absolutely has to sell and must raise some money immediately. Will therefore sacrifice his well-improved ranch. Any one who is looking for a great bargain will certainly do well by purchasing this property.

Sixty acres, only a short distance from the city. Best of soil. "A" water, 12 acres in fruit, 5 acres in alfalfa, balance grain and garden land. Certainly no better in the entire valley. Good, large house. Many good features about this ranch which are too numerous to mention. Come out to see it. Only $4000 cash, balance at 8 per cent.

Ten acres, all in cultivation. Located close in. Best of soil. Part in alfalfa, part in grain, some fruit, lots of shade. Small 3-room house; good well, etc. $1500 cash. Price for few days only at lowest prices. $2500

We have anything you want in country property at lowest prices.

We keep in close touch with the local real estate situation and are in a position to save you money.

YOUR MONEY BACK

IF ANYTHING WE SELL YOU IS NOT AS WE REPRESENT IT.

THE BEAUTY BUDGET.

A girl whose skin is the envy of her companions declares that she attributes it to the grain, transparent texture, velvety softness and radiant bloom to three simple agencies.

"I drink at least six or seven glasses of cold, but not less, water every day," she told an admiring friend, "preferably between meals; but at meals, too, I drink a good deal. Tea and coffee never touch. Oh, yes; I used to, and I do not deny that I missed them at first. But my complexion was my principal asset, and I felt it was worth some sacrifice. I managed to give up coffee in this way: I drank a cupful of hot milk, into which I poured just a spoonful or so of strong coffee. I reduced this to one spoonful, and then omitted it altogether. Tea was an easier matter, and now I take either hot milk, malted milk or even hot water for luncheon. A reputable physician once told me that if I drank a glassful of hot water fifteen minutes before each meal, not only indigestion but my kindred ills would flee."

"If such a simple thing can do so much," I said, incredulously, "how is it that people are ever ill?"

"He smiled. 'Because people won't do simple things,' was his reply."

"Now I believe him—because that simple rule is so tiresome to observe. However, I do observe it often enough to know that it is very beneficial."

"Next, I wash my face only once a day! That sounds rather dreadful, but I dry clean it twice. I take a soft and perfectly smooth old towel, and throw it over my face. (Sometimes I have used a large silk handkerchief with the very best results!) Then I spread my hand over the towel and massage my face through it. With my wrists under my chin I slowly and gently, always gently, remember—work my fingers from the middle of my forehead to my ears and from above my eyebrows to my chin. Less than five minutes of this treatment leaves the face burning and stinging, and unbecomingly red. But in about a quarter of an hour this undesirable glow has faded away, leaving a bloom which has been called—though I say it as should not—'peach-blossom.'"

"The third agency is the more frequently used 'cream bath.' I don't use cream, however, as I am rather distrustful of creams. Instead, I take the finest sweet oil, dip my finger tips in it and massage face, neck and that tell-
